

Regional Youth Engagement Hubs

The Department of Education aims for all young people in Queensland to be engaged in study or work. To this end, the Department has established a Regional Youth Engagement Hub in every education region. These Hubs help young people who have become disengaged to either reconnect with education, training or employment.

What are the destinations of young Queenslanders supported by the Hubs?

Regional Youth Engagement Hubs support the transitions of disengaged young people to state or non-state schools, employment, vocational education and training, and higher education.

What support do Regional Youth Engagement Hubs provide to young people who have become disengaged?

Youth Engagement Hubs can enlist a wide range of professionals – guidance officers, youth support workers, transition support officers, Indigenous liaison officers, teachers, amongst others – to provide case management services to reconnect young people to study or work. These services can include:

- ▶ general guidance and assessment
- ▶ pathways planning
- ▶ short term programs
- ▶ behaviour management support
- ▶ support of social and emotional wellbeing
- ▶ referrals to other agencies.

Who can refer a young person to a Hub?

Anyone who is supporting a disengaged young person can refer them to a Regional Youth Engagement Hub. This includes, but is not limited to, youth workers, youth justice workers, transition support workers, parents, and guardians.

SCENARIO

Ben

A child safety officer supported Ben's transition from one foster home to another. During the transition the child safety officer discovered that he was no longer attending school. Ben told the child safety officer that he was often suspended for poor behaviour and no longer had the motivation to attend. Concerned about Ben's engagement, the child safety officer contacted their region's Youth Engagement Hub. The Hub provided behaviour management support and counselling to Ben to help him start attending school again. In collaboration with the child safety officer, the Youth Engagement Hub managed Ben's re-entry in to his school.

SCENARIO

Sarah

A transition support officer assisted Sarah as she came to the end of her detention. The officer wanted to help Sarah get back into school but didn't know where to start. The officer contacted their region's Youth Engagement Hub, and the Hub arranged a meeting with the principal of Sarah's local state school to arrange her enrolment. The Hub worked with the school to ensure Sarah received additional support from the school to help her remain engaged.
